In one year what do employees of the Juneau Police Department accomplish? The incredibly diverse responsibilities of a Juneau police officer make the term “routine business” a dichotomy.

Behind the statistics are days of service to the community, tempered with skill, experience, and emotion; days that for many of our citizens may represent a bad experience or even tragedy.

But when major events occur, the citizens of Juneau come together in support of this agency. 2007-2008 had its share of major events. This report is a snapshot in time from the drift of police work that came before and continues every day.
“In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.”

July 4

The July 4th celebration continues to be Juneau’s favorite summer holiday and 2007 was no exception. It’s also JPD’s busiest working holiday each year. Vacations are cancelled and all officers are expected to work. Chief Browning even led the parade in a new patrol car. In addition to providing crowd and traffic control for the parade, between midnight July 3 and midnight July 4, JPD personnel responded to 312 calls for service.

July 14

5:56 AM

A young man’s life tragically ends when his vehicle leaves the road and careens down an embankment. JPD officers often find themselves helping shattered families pick up the pieces.
A frantic woman calls 9-1-1 requesting an ambulance for her son who has stopped breathing. Three JPD officers are in the area and respond to the call. The officers find the young man with no pulse and indeed not breathing. Officers Krag Campbell and Matthew DuBois go to work performing cardio pulmonary resuscitation as Capital City Fire and Rescue workers begin to arrive at the scene. The third officer, Terry Allen takes the family aside to try to calm them and to explain the role they will need to play during the next few hours.

The officers continue to assist the EMTs until a pulse was re-started. The young man is transported to Bartlett Regional Hospital in grave condition. That Thursday evening these JPD officers were able to provide crucial assistance and support to medical emergency personnel resulting in a young life being saved. Officers Campbell and DuBois were awarded the Department’s lifesaving medal for their actions.

Urging maximum punishment:
Juneau District Attorney Doug Gardner holds two pieces of evidence; the sawed-off shotgun that had been confiscated from Coday in June 2006 by the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, and the sawed-off rifle used in the August 2006 murder of Simone Young Kim.

"One year and six days ago Mr. Coday took Kim’s life," Juneau Superior Court Judge Michael Thomson said, "Today I’m effectively taking his."

And so ended the JPD investigation and prosecution of Jason Coday. “A little more than a year ago, we were faced with the type of crime that can terrorize a community – a stranger to stranger homicide with no known motive. Most of the department was involved in one way or another with the Coday murder case. I could not have been more proud of our department when Jason Coday was captured shortly after his horrendous crime, a professional and through investigation then conducted which lead to his conviction for murder. We as a department – the whole team – really stepped up to the plate when things got critical, and that is quite an accomplishment.

The Coday case kicked off a year that featured an unusual amount of death investigations. Our department has met these challenges diligently and professionally.” (Chief Greg Browning – September 22, 2007)
August 10, 2007 was a day of good news and one of tragedy. Early in the day, Jason Coday was sentenced to 102 years in prison for the brutal killing of a stranger at the rear of Fred Meyers. JPD officers’ pride in knowing a job well done was shattered later that evening, when an officer responding to reports of a woman being held at knifepoint was forced to take the suspect’s life.

The community responded with overwhelming empathy and support for the officer, but it’s a day that will live indefinitely in the hearts and memories of JPD personnel.
In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.

An employee of a business in the 5200 block of Glacier Hwy. reports a man has attempted to rob the store. She said the man demanded money or he would shoot her. He made the demand twice before the employee ran to the back of the store where the suspect could not see her and called JPD.

She is able to give responding officers a good description of the suspect; a tall very heavy male with black hair and a full beard. She says he is wearing light colored jeans and a black coat or sweater.

5:54 PM As officers are searching the area for the suspect, another business reports a robbery in progress. Store employees overpower the suspect and detain him until officers arrive.

A 38 year old Juneau resident is transported to Bartlett Regional Hospital for treatment of injuries he sustained when he fought with store employees. He is lodged at Lemon Creek Correctional Center on charges of Robbery, Theft, Assault, and Parole Violation.

JPD officers responded to 17 robberies in 2007.
November has its share of police related incidents, but it also marks the beginning of a project that will ultimately result in the creation of a geo-file for the Department’s computer aided dispatch (CAD) system. Three interns hired by the Department for this 8 month task use global positioning systems equipment to verify the high and low address numbers of every street in the City. They travel to each of the 12,000 plus addresses marking their location on a geo-file map. In addition the interns locate and pin-point every fire hydrant in the City; information that will also be fed into CAD to assist Capital City Fire and Rescue.

Sgt. Tom Bates supervises the investigation of a serious injury crash.

On Monday evening the Juneau Police Department receives a report of a two vehicle injury accident on Egan Drive at Vanderbilt. Investigation reveals a 1998 Blue Toyota Corolla driven by a 53 year old Juneau woman has turned from Vanderbilt on to Egan drive against the red light. The Toyota is struck broadside by a red 1997 Nissan Pickup driven by a 26 year old Juneau woman. The driver of the Toyota is transported to Bartlett Regional Hospital after Capital City Fire Rescue personnel extricate her from her vehicle using the Jaws of Life. The driver of the Nissan Pickup suffers less serious injuries and goes to the hospital in a private vehicle.

JPD officers responded to 1,123 crashes last year with 329 reported as hit and run crimes.

JPD officers respond to a report of burglary or theft every 6.4 hours. Unlike crimes against people, burglary and theft remain the most difficult crimes to solve with the suspect/s rarely seen. Although the Department has a crime laboratory, without a forensic scientist evidence must be sent to Anchorage for processing, sometimes taking months to get results.
A customer runs into the Waffle House across from Fisherman’s Bend in Auke Bay to report the Fisherman’s Bend building is on fire. JPD officers respond to assist Capital City Fire and Rescue with crowd and traffic control. JPD’s Citizen’s Patrol also responds to assist with closing down Glacier Hwy.

In spite of valiant efforts by CCFR, the fire burns through the night destroying the building, the business, and the immediate future of the property owners.

An investigation reveals that the fire has multiple points of origin and JPD detectives are called in. Possible suspects are subsequently identified in the arson, but the owner’s insurance coverage will not replace the loss.

March 19
3:20 AM

JPD receives a report that a vehicle has just been driven into the fence of a residence in the 4000 block of Riverwood Drive in the Mendenhall Valley. The caller tells dispatchers that he originally heard what sounded like a vehicle accelerating on the street. He says he heard the collision then saw two juveniles run from the wrecked vehicle. Both appeared to be white male juveniles, approximately 16 years of age. One was wearing a white baseball cap, worn backwards and a tan coat. The other male was wearing a gray “hoodie” sweatshirt.

With no highways leading out of the Borough, Juneau enjoys one of the lowest auto theft rates in the nation. Last year 53 vehicles were reported stolen in Juneau as compared to 165 taken in Fairbanks.

In the past year, officers assigned to work narcotics violations in Juneau in conjunction with JPD patrol officers seized 522 grams of cocaine, 10 pounds of marijuana and 28 plants, 89 tabs of 80 mg oxycontin, 3 pounds of methamphetamine, 59 grams of heroin, 778 grams of hash oil, 118 tabs of hydrocodone, 117 grams of psilocybin mushrooms, and $21,000 in drug proceeds. During the summer months, Juneau enjoys the visit of more than one million cruise ship passengers, although JPD is not staffed to deal with this influx of business. In 2007, the City Manager approved the JPD Paid Reserve Officer (PRO) program which brings former certified JPD officers back to work on a part time basis during the summer months and in cases of emergency. Currently 6 formerly retired officers are providing needed police services to the downtown business district.

Introduction to the Juneau Police Department

In FY 2007-2008, the Department is authorized 52 commissioned personnel, 40 civilian personnel and 1 F.T.E. shared by up to 4 police reserve officers. In order to accomplish its mission, the Department is organized into functional work units as depicted in the organizational chart. The staffing and responsibilities of each organizational unit are as follows:

Chief of Police – Responsible for the overall direction and operation of the Department.

Greg Browning

Assistant Chief of Police – Reporting directly to the Chief of Police, the Assistant Chief of Police is responsible for administrative and functional matters of operation and support within the Department on a twenty-four hour basis. The Assistant Chief of Police is responsible for the overall direction and operation of the Department when the Chief of Police is absent from the City and Borough.

"In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear."

Operations Division – Reporting directly to the Assistant Chief of Police, the Operations Commander, Captain Jerry Nankervis has 24 hour responsibility for the delivery of patrol and special operations functions for the Department. Included in that role is the oversight of the Department’s fleet of vehicles.

!Jerry Nankervis

Administrative Services Division – Also reporting directly to the Assistant Chief of Police is the Administrative Manager, Cindee Brown-Mills. Ms. Brown-Mills is responsible for the Department’s fiscal activities, records, computer systems, personnel recruitment, crime analysis and for maintaining police facilities. Ms. Brown-Mills also serves the Department as a public information officer.

!Cindee Brown-Mills
Two lieutenants share the responsibility for managing patrol services. Lt. Kris Sell manages three patrol teams and Lt. Ed Mercer, two. Lt. Sell is the Department’s lead instructor in arrest and defense tactics and works closely with Juneau’s advocate groups and the school district. Lt. Mercer also is responsible for managing the Department’s special operations functions that include crash reconstruction, criminal investigations, narcotics enforcement and commercial passenger vehicle regulation.

Lieutenant Troy Wilson has 24 hour responsibility for managing the Department’s joint police/fire communications center. Lieutenant Wilson supervises 3 lead dispatchers who supervise 11 public safety communications personnel. In addition Lt. Wilson is responsible for the communications backbone that enables the Department’s radio system. Lt. Wilson manages the Department’s Special Emergency Response Team (SERT) and the Explosive Ordinance Disposal (EOD) team. During FY 2007-2008, Lt. Wilson attended the FBI’s National Academy, a 10 week advanced law enforcement management course held in Quantico, Virginia.
In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.
Patrol Services

Officers assigned to patrol work either a 10 or a 12 hour shift. Three teams work the 10 hour schedule and two teams, the 12. This schedule provides time for in-service training one day a week which is crucial to maintaining officer’s expertise in a wide variety of subjects.

Because of its size, the Department has a limited ability to assign enough officers to conduct follow up investigations when patrol officers complete initial reports. As a result, JPD patrol officers follow up most of the cases they respond to initially. Complex or high felony cases may be handed off to a core of four detectives to complete the follow up work.

JPD patrol officers have more opportunities than officers in most other cities the size of Juneau. With no real immediate support from outside agencies, JPD officers must provide services often available to cities from neighboring agencies.

As a result the Department staffs and trains officers to respond to tactical events involving armed suspects and/or explosive devices. Most officers volunteer for ancillary assignments and may qualify to become trainers in such areas as firearms instruction, less lethal weapons, radar, alcohol testing device maintenance, drug recognition, crash reconstruction, critical incident negotiation, recruit field training, school resource program (DARE), and arrest and control tactics.
Paid Reserve Officers (PRO) Program

With the cruise ship industry bringing more than a million tourists to Juneau each summer, the Department had to find a way to field additional officers in the downtown business district during summer months. The PRO program provided a solution. Funded by dollars from the cruise ship head tax, this program encourages officers who have either retired or otherwise left the Department in good standing to return to JPD and provide additional law enforcement services to the community. PRO officers may also be called upon to assist during times of crisis.
“In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.”

Special Operations Division

In addition to police officers this division fields civilian Community Service Officers. These police employees oversee the commercial passenger vehicles that serve our citizens and summer visitors. They also have other duties including enforcing bear related and littering ordinances, parking enforcement and traffic control for special events. Our CSOs are supervised by a lead CSO and report to Sergeant David Campbell who also supervises the criminal investigators. Sgt. Campbell is also a public information officer and serves as the supervisor of the Crises Negotiation Team.

CSO A. Sell searches through litter to identify the owner – JPD responded to more than 1000 litter calls last year.
“In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.”

Providing professional police services requires that employees are trained in new technology and remain current in matters of law. JPD employees received 10,809 hours of training last year.

SERT team members are specially trained and equipped to deal with armed criminals who are intent on violence. In addition to regular training exercises, this team goes through an annual intensive training experience to keep themselves sharp. Although they are rarely needed, when they are it is critical that they are ready.

Like the SERT Team, EOD call-outs are rare. However, because Juneau is the State Capital, the potential for this kind of violence is real, and with little outside assistance available, JPD must be ready to deal with it with little delay.
Purchased with funds from a federal Homeland Security Department grant, the City’s Mobil Command Center is maintained by JPD. This unique vehicle is equipped to serve as a command post during a tactical event and as a back up communications center. The FBI’s Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) system classifies crimes in two categories; Part 1 crimes (more serious) and Part 2 crimes. Crime statistics are then published each year for cities across the nation. The following charts illustrate Juneau’s Part 1 crime experience for the past 5 years. Criminal homicide is not included because in the past 5 years, Juneau has only experienced 2 homicides in 2006 and 1 in 2007 and all 3 cases were cleared by arrest. One performance measure most police agencies calculate is clearance rate for crimes reported to them. A clearance may be reported to UCR when the suspect was identified and arrested, or the suspect was identified but for some reason beyond the control of the agency could not be arrested.

Rape is the UCR title for sexual assault in Alaska. In 2004 the clearance rate for reported cases of rape in the US was 42%. The JPD clearance rate for reported cases of rape (sexual assault) in 2004 was 97% and for the past 5 years averaged 76%.

Statistics – Calls for Service

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE IN JUNEAU

Recognized as one of Juneau’s problems, reports of domestic violence crimes are on the rise.

These charts not only reflect the upward trend in domestic violence calls for service, it also appears that in 2005 the numbers of protection orders sought by victims began to trend downward. It may also be significant that violations of those orders trend upwards during the same period and could reflect a perception that the orders are becoming less effective.

For the second year in a row, the Department is seeking grant funding to hire a domestic violence professional to work along side JPD officers dealing with cases of domestic violence. If we are successful, this social worker will follow up on these crimes to attempt to break the cycle of violence in Juneau’s domestic situations.

USE OF FORCE

The Juneau Police Department recognizes the complexity of situations necessitating the use of force. Department members follow established authorizations to use force provided by state law under Alaska Statute AS 11.81.370. At times, officers are confronted with situations where control is required to effect arrests or protect the public safety. Attempts will be made to achieve control through advice, warnings, and persuasion. However, in situations where resistance, a threat to life, or a threat of physical force against officers or others is encountered and verbal persuasion has not been effective, is not feasible, or would appear to be ineffective, an officer may use objectively reasonable force. In the event deadly force is utilized, a thorough investigation will be conducted. All uses of force will be appropriately investigated, documented, and reviewed by supervisory and/or command personnel. Department members may use force to effect an arrest, prevent an escape, overcome resistance, in self-defense, or in the defense of others. The type and degree of force used must be objectively reasonable and based upon the facts and circumstances of the situation.

(JPD’s Use of Force Policy)

JPD officers are trained and equipped with the latest weapon systems technology and carry several less lethal instruments. The Taser has become the instrument of choice due to its effectiveness with little resulting damage to the arrestee. Over the past three years we have experienced an increase in the number of incidents in which JPD officers have had to use force to effect arrests, and we currently do not have an explanation for this trend. Officers are required to report any use of force beyond normal handcuffing procedure, including displaying a weapon to gain compliance from the arrestee. JPD officers use force (including displays) about 6 times for every 100 arrests.
In partnership with the people of Juneau, our mission is to make our city a place where people can live safely and without fear.

Statistics – Property and Evidence

Evidence Specialist K. Magee retrieves one of the 3,675 items impounded last year.

A critical task for JPD in criminal prosecutions is maintaining property that is impounded by JPD officers. The prosecuting attorney must show that evidentiary items seized in the investigation, have been maintained so they are exactly as they were when they were seized.

One of the highly restricted areas in the police facility, the evidence and property room remains secured 24 hours a day. Officers “bag and tag” seized property in an adjoining room, place it in secure lockers, and drop the key in a secured key slot. An evidence specialist opens the lockers from the rear, removes the property and catalogs it before storing it in the property room.
Statistics – Records

The federal government, the State of Alaska, and the City and Borough of Juneau have enacted laws and ordinances that control the security, privacy, and dissemination of police records. To that end the Department maintains a secure records room and all cases that are released outside the police facility are done so by the Records Unit staff. This ensures that information that is protected by law is either not released or redacted from the record. In 2007 Department employees took 6,773 case reports.

In addition to maintaining case records, the Records Unit staff serves walk-in customers and takes in money for fines and various fees. In 2007 Records Unit clerks took in $677,359 which was transferred to the City Treasury.

…..and so our snapshot closes with the events of June, 2008. The mystery of what lies ahead for JPD employees is the substance that keeps our officers fresh in spirit and mind. State accreditation is on the horizon and a strategic plan is in the works. Join us again next year as we look back on the events of 2008 and the police officers that handle them….the dedicated service to our citizens and the commitment to personal excellence that makes the Juneau Police Department the best police agency in the State of Alaska.
